

Abstract

5 The present invention relates to the management of an emergency assistance program. The invention provides for the management of an emergency situation through incident tracking, invoicing, billing, and reporting. It further provides various automated actions to manage the situation quickly and efficiently.